Introduction of Macha Village

Lanzhou, Gansu, China 権主題

Macha Village

Macha Village belongs to Dingjiagou Town, Huining County, Baiyin City, Gansu Province. It is located on the southwestern edge of Huining County, approximately 150 KM from downtown Lanzhou, roughly a 2.5-hour drive.

The region generally slopes from south to north, part of the Loess Plateau gully region, characterized by a north-south oriented, ridge-like loess hilly landscape. The elevation varies between 1800 to 2000 meters, falling within the foot of the Hua-Ling Mountains.

The annual average temperature ranges between 6 to 9°C, and the annual rainfall is between 180 to 450mm. The region is on the northwestern edge of the southeastern monsoon climate zone, characterized by low precipitation and high evaporation. The area experiences a significant diurnal temperature variation, with direct sun exposure and intense heat from July to September, and a frost period with colder temperatures from November to February.

Social and Economic Situation

- Macha Village comprises 10 separate communities (社).
- It has over 500 households with more than 2000 residents.
- Approximately 1100 residents form the labour force, many working in cities like Lanzhou, Xinjiang, Xi'an, Shanghai, Beijing.
- Remaining population includes the elderly, women, and school-going children.
- Primary economic activity is agriculture, with crops including winter wheat, peas, corn, broad beans, potatoes, and sesame.
- The landscape mainly consists of terraced farmlands due to hilly terrain.
- Livestock includes cattle, sheep, and chickens.
- Produce is primarily for self-consumption; surplus is sold externally.
- Main income sources are farming and animal husbandry.
- Due to substantial youth out-migration, some lands are left fallow.

Traditional Culture

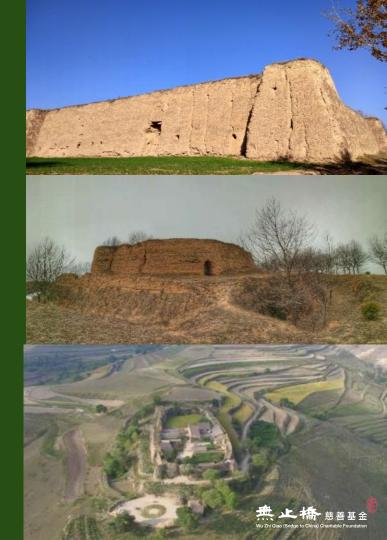

Traditional cultural forms in Macha Village mainly include Qinqiang (秦腔), shadow puppetry (皮影), and Tongwei ballads (通渭小調). Notably, Wang Weiji (王為吉) is the inheritor of the shadow puppet troupe and also the preserver of this art form at the cultural center. In 2017, with the support of WZQ, square dancing (廣場舞) became popular in the village. Other traditional cultural practices include hemp weaving (麻編), paper-cutting (剪紙), and embroidery (刺繡).

Historical Sites

Macha Village has three well-preserved historical rammed earth fortresses (夯土圍城).

One of them is located in Yan Mountain Community (閆山社), and another relatively well-preserved one is in Mancha Community (蠻岔社). The rammed earth fortress in Yan Mountain Community has been abandoned and is mainly used for crop cultivation.

Macha Village Center

During the period from 2014 to 2015, WZQ organized hundreds of volunteers from Hong Kong and the mainland China, along with villagers, to construct a modern rammed earth village center covering an area of 1200 square meters. It was officially completed and put into use in 2016.
